A SINGULAR STORY FROM THE CITY OF BROTHERLY LOVE. e Great Prize that was Drawn in the Havana Lettery-A Friend of the Lucky

Ticket Holder applying for the Rule of of Division-Mr. Penistan's Story. prrespondence of The Sun. PHILADELPHIA, July 21. - Everybody knows that Mr. Richard Penistan drew, nominally, half a million of dollars on a ticket which he purchased for the May drawing of the Royal

Havana Lottery, and that, after all deductions were made, he had still left to his order the sum of $410,000. The general public knows that the lucky gentleman has been generous in his good fortune, and has bestowed liberally upon worthy objects. What the public generally does not know is this: that Mr. Elisha D. Whitney, ell-known brewer of this city, claims one half the net proceeds of the lucky ticket. But uch is the case. On June 13, Mr. Whitney filed in the Supreme Court of New York, a deposition attaching all that portion of the proceeds which Mr. Penistan had not at that time drawn from Mr. August Belm nt, his agent in the transacneighborhood of $180,800. Thus far, legal pro-

As to Mr. Whitney's asseverations that he is entitled to one-half the proceeds, that gentleman states that Mr. Penistan, on being apprised of his fortune in drawing the princely prize, nt to Mr. Whitney and informed him of the fact, and then and there entered into an agreement by which Mr. Whitney was to receive onehaif the net proceeds. That Mr. Whitney, in his confidence, permitted the whole transaction to be finished up by Mr. Penistan in his own name, all moneys being paid to and receipted by the latter, until it began to become apparant that Mr. Penistan was ignoring Mr. Whitney's claim, and the latter then took legal steps.

Mr. Penistan, in answer to the affidavit of Mr. Whitney that he promised and agreed to transfer and pay over one-half of his interest in the sum of $500,000 to the latter, says that the claim is false and without any foundation in truth. He never agreed to pay him that amount or any other sum of money at any time. In regard to obtaining the prize, Mr. Penistan gives the following interesting explanation; obtaining the prize, Mr. Penistan gives the following interesting explanation:

He purchased of Mr. J. B. Martinez & Co. of New York, and was the sole owner of the ticket
No. 1.077, which drew the prize of half a million dollars in the Royal Havana Lottery in the month of April last; and on the 24th of April that firm telegraphed him of the fact. He thereupon called upon Mr. Whitney, with whom he had had considerable business dealings for some years, informed him of the fact, and, as a friend, asked him whether it would be conyenicut for nim to go to New York, Mr. Whitney promptly acquiesced, stating that it would afford him great pleasure to accompany his friend Penistan.

They started together on the same after-afford him great pleasure to accompany his friend Penistan.

They started together on the same afternoon and called at the office of Martinez & Co., who confirmed the information stated in the telegram. They remained in New York the next day and the day following, having left Philadelphia on the afternoon of April 24 and returned to Philadelphia on the 26th.

During that time Mr. Peniston states that he received several offers to purchase the prize ticket which were not satisfactory, and finally he agreed with Messrs, Belmont & Co. for the collection of the money. He also insured the ticket against marine risks at the office of the Atlantic insurance Company.

Messrs, Helmont & Co. agreed to collect the money for one per cent, commission, and the insurance was effected at a premium of one per cent, on $400.00.

MR. WHITNEY ADVISES HIS PRIEND.

MR. WHITNEY ADVISES HIS PRIEND.

MR. WHITNEY ADVISES HIS PRIEND.

Mr. Penistan continues: Mr. Whitney and myself went in company to the office of Beimont & Co. and the office of the Atlantic Insurance Company. Mr. Whitney recommended the insurance company, saving that the advisor of the company was a relative or some connection of his. During these visits he made suggestions, as a friend, as to the business, but I decided for neself aiways, well knowing that the lottery company was certain to be collected.

Mr. Whitney paid no money, to my knowledge, except that he paid the bill at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and for some very trifling matters during the visit. I have often asked him to state the amount, so that I could repay him. The only liability he assumed occurred as follows: When the partner or clerk of Mr. Belmont asked about the payment of the premium for the insurance Mr. Whitney volunteered the remark, without any request on my part, that "I will be responsible for that." I was both able and ready to pay the amount if asked for it, and was certainly perfectly responsible for the amount. In fact erfectly responsible for the amount. In fa e was no risk about it. We then return the following week Mr. Whitney propoo me to go again to New York, and I agreed to he suggestion. There was really no necessity or going at all, because all the errangements or the collection of the money had been closed, viewed it rather in the light of an excursion, to coupled three or four days, and on that oc-asion again Mr. Whitney paid the hotel bill, in he same way as

The clerk of the hotel presents the bill to one of the parties, and it is considered a compliment the has not yet furnished me with a statement of the amounts he paid.

As soon as the fact that I had drawn the prize was established. Mr. Whitney commenced to importune me to invest the sum of $100,000 as a partner with his son, then carrying on the brewery business in New York, and he continued doing so, although I did not encourage the proposition, until on or about the 26th of May, when he esked me for a find answer, and I declined to embark in the proposed partnership. Two or three days afterward Mr. Whitney sent for me, and invited me into a private room, where he stated to me that in consideration of accommodations in money matters in years gone by, and the friendship for a long time established between us, and of the fact that I had invited him to go to New York with me, he thought the least I could do was to give him $5,000.

$50,000. I was naturally astounded at such a proposition, and said so. I decimed it, of course, and said to him that I would not entertain nor discuss it, and then left him at once. On the same evening Mr. Whitney called at my store to read a letter which he informed me he had written to be sent to New York. I consented to hear it read, and he proceeded to read it, until he came to that part of it which stated that he had made me the proposition I have mentioned about the $50,000, when I said I would listen no further, and left him.

OLD FRIENDS FALL OUT.

I solemnly assert that up to that time when was so requested by Mr. Whitney to give him $50.000 he had not asked me either for compensation or a gift, nor up to that time or since have I agreed to compensate him in relation to or give him any portion of the prize to which I was solely and exclusively entitled as the owner of the ticket in the lottery. I believed that Mr. Whitney was willing and anxious to accompany me to New York as a friend, and that he was incapable of asking pay for such services, and I was not undeceived until I was asked to listen to his request to pay him the sum of $50.000.

On the next day I sent a letter to Mr. Whitney, in which I repeated my refusal to agree to the request, and truly stated that when I asked him to go with me to New York I thought he was to go as my friend. A day or two afterward Mr. Whitney sent me his buil for goods purchased, with a request for payment, as well as the payment for promissory notes, some of which had not yet matured—altogether amounting to over $7.0.0. I promptly paid this amount, thus satisfying all demands for goods purchased and all known claims, except the hotel bills I have mentioned.

A HEAVY CLAIM.

So matters stood when I was surprised to hear that Mr. Whitney had garmsheed my funds in the hands of relimont & Co. upon a claim founded on his affidavit, that I was indepted to him in the sum of $205,000 in consideration, as he alleges, of his services in the matter of obtaining the money from the Havana jottery, for which, as he states, I agreed to transfer and may over to him one-hif of all my interest therein. In his affidavit he save that, relying upon such agreement, and indeed thereby, he rendered the valuable services, and expended large sums of money in and about the obtaining of the same. I deny positively that I made any such agreement with him for compensation, and aver that he rendered me no services, paid no sums of money, and incurred no labilities on my account except the visits I have mentioned to New York, the payment of notel bills, and the unsolicited guarantee of the premium all of which was done, as I have stated, voluntarily and without any agreement otherwise.

Wedding of an Indian Prince.

From the Tones of India.

The heir apparent of an Indian prince, the Nawab of Joonaghur, was married in the latter part of May. The Nawab spent a very large amount of money on the entertainment given to the European and native guests. As many as 60,000 visitors flocked to Joonaghur from the neighboring towns to witness the spectacle, which is said to have been even more gorgeous than that when the Nawab received Sir Seymour Fitzgeraid in 1870, the artificial durbar hall alone, with its brilliant decorations, having cost 55,000 rupees. The wedding procession was two hours in passing a given point. First came half a dozen elephants, gorgeously apparelled in cloths of crimson and gold, and bearing on their backs a fortune in the shape of magnificent gold and sliver howdahs, curiously and richly carved. Next came prancing along the Nawab's favorite horses, beautifully caparisoned. After these came along, in unbroken native guests of the Nawab, each batch being accompanied by a party of nautch giris and the unpreposessing looking fiddling attendants, who gave to the otherwise brilliant pageant a grotesque appearance.

Last of all came the young bridegroom, mounted on a large elephant, decorated like the others, with the Nawab behind him, comfortably smoking his hooka; and who, with the best possible grace, acknowledged the cheer with which he was greeted by his guests in the Custom House. With the passage of the Prince and well-mounted bedy guard the grand exhibition was brought to a close, and the European spectators took their departure. An hour or two after the return of the guests a discharge of cannon from the palace announced the fact of the Prince's marriage. On the following day Capt. Wodehouse, at the request of the Nawab, laid the foundation stone of a new high school, and in the evening the young Prince married his second wife. Both the young ladies whom the heir-apparent espoused are daughters of Kattywar chiefs. Prince Bappoo Mijar is a lad of eighteen, of quiet, unassuming manners, fond of field sports, but not much given to his books. Up to the present time he has been a student at the Rajcoomer College at Rajeote.

Hosen B. Perkins-A Model New York Mer-

Hosen B. Perkins—A Model New York Merchaut.

From the Chicago Times.

Hosen B. Perkins seems to grasp at a glance the mighty resources of the West. He is a native of the Granite State, but left his home at the age of 17, to become the architect of his own fortune, bringing up in the city of New York, where he went to clerking. He passed through the struggles incident to a successful life, and eventually became the head of the well-known carpet house of Perkins & Brother. In New York, retoining that position twenty-five years. He retired but not to private life. Mere business could not gratify an ambition like his. During his business he had been a bard literary student. He is a well-known public speaker. He is also an author. It is rare that we find a man reared on the dusty marts of traffic who retains on the shady side of fifty such a taste for literary pursuits. As a speaker his style is that of a man of the world, easy, fluent and graceful.
